THE NAPIER CAR

From £233 to £1712. Chasis valve with Tyres.

"WHEN the authoritative history of the automobile is compiled, no production will loom larger in its pages than the NAPIER CAR. As a British production it unquestionably led the van in the motor industry, and its triumphs set the seal upon the British car for reliability, silence, speed and economy. Motor car manufacturers owe much to the firm of Napier, for when the foreign, and particularly French, builders sent forth their products on an all-conquering mission, Messrs. NAPIER were practically the only firm, with any pretensions, to enter the lists against them; and an admirable fight did they put up.

We have to travel back nearly a decade to find the Napier car's first successes, full marks, fastest time and a gold medal being awarded to it in 1901. Then in 1902 it sensationally won the great international event the Gordon-Bennett Cup. This victory created little less than consternation in the foreign camps, for till then British competition had been regarded as a negligible factor. But to show that reliability, as well as speed, was a feature of the Napier car. Mr. C. J. Glidden drove 5,125 miles through Europe, a feat that then, few manufacturers would have liked to submit their cars to.

From this time on, success followed success, every conceivable event connected with motoring being annexed, including all the best continental prizes and all the principal insular trophies.

In the growth of the motor industry, most of the accessories upon which impinge the efficiency of the engine become from time to time discarded; and it is the live manufacturer that hastens to avail himself of such devices as add to the economy and effectiveness of his product. In the present standardization of the Napier engine all the brainy conceptions and developments that time and usage have gestated, have been incorporated in the finished article. It is at times both irksome and inconvenient to alter a detail which, up to then, has met its purpose; for such alteration involves not only waste of time but expense also. A consideration of this character, however, has no weight with Messrs. Napier. If an iota of advance is exemplified by the utilization of any alteration, that alteration proceeds, even though expensive patterns have to be scrapped in the doing of it. Small wonder, then, that the Napier product occupies the pinnacle it does, in the engineering world. . . . . .

I have no wish to labour the matter, but I must admit that with all my experience, obtained from an inspection of most of the up-to-date motor manufacturing establishments in England, I was never so impressed by one of them, as I was by my visit to Messrs. Napier's works at Acton. They are, indeed, one of England's assets; and a premier one at that. . . . . .

I would also like to say that noiselessness which is such a noticeable feature of the Napier is obtained by running the gears in mesh for days together, upon a test bench, until they are absolutely sweet and silent, only then are they built up into the finished chassis. The latter is then in its turn subjected to stringent running tests, first on the works track and then on the road, loaded up in each case with weights to represent body and passengers."—"INDIAN AND EASTERN ENGINEER," March 1910.

BULLION.

Bar silver in London remained unchanged for ready, and locally the market remained firm. The big dealer who wants to keep the market up tries his best to maintain the same and Bears are rather afraid of making sales at a high rate. Forwards opened at Rs. 71-15-0, advanced to Rs. 72-1-0 and about 50 to 60 packages changed hands.

Gold market remained steady and unchanged.

GANG OF BURGLARS.

Smart Arrest.

At the Mazagon Police Court, on Saturday, before Mr. Chunilal B. Setalvad, Fourth Presidency Magistrate, Dawal Gangaram and Deoji Khinji and five other Hindus were charged at the instance of Inspector Sullivan with the theft of gold embroidery. The first two accused were challenged by men of the Detective Police, as they were going along Omerkhary Road on the morning of the 25th ultimo. Inquiries led to the arrest of the other five accused, and it was found they belonged to the gang of burglars who had been committing acts of burglary and theft in the city during the last two months.

The Magistrate convicted the accused and sentenced the first accused to one year's rigorous imprisonment, the second and the sixth to six months', the third to nine months' and the fifth and the seventh to three months' hard labour. The fourth accused, a boy of fourteen, was sentenced to receive twelve stripes.

THE GAMBLING ACT.

ON Saturday, at the Esplanade Police Court, before Mr. A. H. S. Aston, Chief Presidency Magistrate, Inspector Mirza Mahomed Ali, of the Bombay Criminal Investigation Department, charged Okka Bhana and six others, under section 5 of the Gambling Act. Inspector Mirza states that in consequence of certain information received, he raided a stable in Pinjrapole Lane on Friday, where the accused were found seated in a circle. He arrested the accused. Rs. 2-10-6 and some torn cards were found lying near them. Accused No. 4 pleaded not guilty. The rest of the accused pleaded guilty. Accused No. 4 said that he had been to the place to see a relative as he was in search of employment. His Worship discharged the fourth accused, and convicted and sentenced the rest of the accused to pay a fine of Rs. 10 each.

BURGLARY IN A JEWELLER'S SHOP.

MR. VINCENT, Deputy Commissioner of Police, Detective Branch, Superintendent O'Keiffe, and Inspector Morris are busy inquiring into a case of burglary which took place in the shop of a jeweller, No. 4, Colaba Causeway.

Mr. C. Vorbaid, proprietor of the shop, reported to the police that the premises were entered into between 8-30 and 10 p.m. on Friday night, and valuables to wit gold watches, rings, bracelets and other sundry articles of the collective value of Rs. 15,000 stolen.

The police on inquiry have succeeded in ascertaining that the entrance into the jewellery shop was effected through the sky-light at the back of the premises of a shoe-maker's shop next to the complainant's premises.

THE Navy League proposes to hold a conference to deal with the question of technical education in seamanship on October 21, "Trafalgar Day." Invitations have been sent to county council and other authorities, and a large number of them have replied favourably. It is hoped that the Admiralty, the Board of Trade, and the Local Government Board will be represented. Mr. Geoffrey Drage, chairman of the training-ship Exmouth, will presidé.

THE ACCESSION OATH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—The advices that arrived here by last mail delivery contain the item that the revised oath has passed the second reading in the Commons (the third reading being regarded with a similar result as a foregone conclusion) and that the Bill will pass the Lords, so that, unless the King use his prerogative and withhold his ratification of it, the Romanist party will gain their point, notwithstanding the fact that nonconformity (or anti-Romanism) prevails in the country in the proportion of at least four to one. I do not propose to refer to the relation of cause and effect and thus launch into a sea of polemics. The situation is, however, one that has excited a considerable amount of controversy, and the issue that has arisen is, whether the oath has to be regarded as a constitutional utterance forming a condition of the Accession and therefore obligatory, or a personal declaration of the King which therefore may be left unsaid according to his own pleasure? In the latter event, the utterance of either the original or amended oath might to omitted altogether with advantage if, as has been contended, adherence to the Protestant faith is imposed on the occupant of the British Throne by the Bill of Rights, while the omission of it in the impending Coronation ceremonials would be a greater advantage if the amendment is enforced. But if it have a purely constitutional character, then it may reasonably be asserted that the amendment proposed is a flagrant violation of a principle for the establishment of which good blood has been shed, and its adoption would open the road to other innovations more or less important in their character and consequences. Apart from all other considerations, the perpetuation of the original oath has the sanction of the principle that "of things once received and confirmed by use, long usage is a law sufficient," and, to quote Macaulay, "profound reverence for law and prescription has long been characteristic of Englishmen." Has the time then come when not only tradition is to be stultified, but an obligatory utterance is to be set at nought—an utterance which if it have no other purpose is necessary to protect England against a recurrence of the James II period in so far as it controls and assures to the people the acceptance by the occupant of the Throne of not only the doctrines of the Church of England, but impeses anti-Papist obligations on him of a most definite and pronounced character. In this view of the facts, we cannot afford to disregard the status of the Crown as representing the Church and State, which form the foundation of the British constitution, and if one of the stones, perhaps the cornerstone, is to be dislocated, the superstructure is necessarily weakened to the extent at least that that stone occupied in supporting the structure. Regarded even as an expedient, the change has nothing to recommend it, for the reason that our Romanist fellow-citizens have nothing to complain of, enjoying as they do every right and privilege that Anglicans enjoy in a country which gives the law of the land pre-eminence under all conditions and circumstances. There is only one other contention that the advocates of the change have urged that may be regarded as of special notice. I refer to the insult to their faith which Romanists complain that they received in the words of the oath. Against this it is a pertinent fact that their objection to it was not attempted to be asserted until after Catholic Emancipation by the Relief Bill of 1829, and therefore it has been a case of the appetite growing with that on which it has fed. Similarly, this point gained, it only remains for them to agitate against their exclusion from the offices proscribed by that Act, one of which, that of Lord Chancellor of Ireland was opened to them by the Act of 1867, and those disabilities removed, the Throne would become the only remaining object of their ambition, to which the succession of the Pope may possibly to secured, if not as of right, by election, Sic transit gloria mundi.

As to Catholics, as they call themselves, by the oath, it is not without interest that the Church of Rome has placed under curse every person, our King included, who does not accept its dogmas; the Canons of the Council of Trent impose doctrines that are most hopelessly in conflict with Protestant doctrines of faith based on Bible—not Papal—teaching, and conclude with the words "Let him be accursed." It becomes under such conditions an anomaly that we should harbour in our midst an organisation that seems to protect itself and its dogmas by curses solemnly pronounced publicly against all those who dare to have views other than those advertised to the world by the Church of Rome, and when it is considered that they enjoy religious freedom and the protection of their personal rights and property on equal terms with those whom they execrate with curses, the conviction impresses itself on the mind of the impartial thinker that they have much to be thankful for and to bless rather than to curse, in the spirit of toleration with which they are regarded. The Church of Rome has not the least title of foundation, mundane or spiritual, for its pronouncements: in the mundane aspect or relation, it has long since had "Ichabod" written over its portals: while spiritually it is ludicrous that the "Vicar of Christ,"—his representative and deputy on earth—should arrogate to himself and usurp a power that the Great Master never introduced into his ministry, which was a mission admittedly of peace, love and blessing. The only record of a curse that exists was against "the barren fig-tree"—a something without a soul, and that was because its green leaves showed signs of fruit, while it bore none, emblematic of the hypocrite. Surely, that incident does not form the basis of the right to curse that is inherited in the Petrine succession? Putting polemics aside, if the Pope be what he professes to be and so holds the "keys," then he has consigned to hell millions of souls in the most casual and common place manner, including our Kings and Princes, whose well-being and happiness as well for time as eternity are as dear to Britishers as are their own. Let those who have allowed sentiment to overbear their feelings give loyal consideration to the ban under which they and their King and Prince live, "and shall die," if the Pope seriously believe that his curse is effectual, especially if the Accession Oath be regarded as having only temporal duration as against the anathemas of the Pope being intended to be eternal—a very simple issue.

VOTES FOR WOMEN.

THE two Parliamentary sittings devoted to the Woman's Suffrage debate, if they did not bring the measure much "forarder," at least cryatallised a considerable amount of feeling into axioms more or less wise, and more or less amusing. Members on both sides of the House let themselves go in a manner that must have been a relief after dealing with dry-as-dust constitutional subjects, such as the Budget, the Veto, the Territorial Force, Labour Exchanges, the National Debt and the rest. Mr. Shackleton introduced the Bill to a second reading without any very powerful oratory, but stated bald facts in relation to the increasing part taken by women in the work of the country. He evoked laughter only when he referred to the general suspicion that the narrow scope of the measure was but the thin end of the wedge : What sort of a derisive cheer, he asked, would meet him if he proposed to begin with the thick end ? which apparently is adult suffrage. The seconder, as was fit in dealing with this non-party measure was, Sir J. Rolleston, a Member of the Opposition, and he was even more frank than Mr. Shackleton in expressing his belief that it could not be a final settlement of the question. As to the excess of zeal of which some of the women advocating the measure were accused, he rather admired it, and the energy and determination with which they supported their cause. Mr. F. E. Smith, not so complacent a Member of the Opposition, was amused to observe that Liberal, Conservative and Labour parties alike, seemed to think the Bill gave a decided advantage to each over the others. So far he did not believe that the majority of women wanted the vote. Even should every woman in England want it, it would not influence him. Neither women nor men wished to be governed by women. Powerful as were the arguments in favour of granting them the vote, he boldly affirmed that after centuries of man-made law, women in England occupied to-day a position so preferential that no parallel could be found to it in any other country in the world. Men were less favoured. He did not complain of being obliged to provide for his wife. But no honourable member could compel his wife to contribute to his support. Mr. Smith's argument that it was unfair to impose the experiment of giving women the Parliamentary vote on an Empire that contained 300,000,000 of Orientals who detested government by a female was knocked over by Mr. Lyttelton, who reminded Mr. Smith that the East showed a passionate loyalty to the rule of the Great White Queen.

To those who urged that the intellectual distinction of many women was a reason for granting them the vote, Mr. Smith ventured to say that the sum total of human happiness, knowledge and achievement would have been almost unaffected had Sappho never sung, Joan of Arc never fought, Siddons never played or if George Eliot had never written. But on the other hand, if the true functions of womanhood had not been faithfully discharged throughout the ages, the existence of the race and the best and tenderest influences would have disappeared. To preserve these Mr. Smith moved an amendment to prevent the intrusion of women in politics. Mr. J. A. Bryce, Ministerialist, seconded the amendment in fear and trembling, for his own household and many of his supporters were against him. Though keen for adult suffrage, he was against this Bill, for he held that woman's moral mission was to keep burning the flame of the ideal in life and conduct. Women should not be asked to sacrifice these ideals as they would have to, if they entered the atmosphere of Parliament which was ever that of compromise, no more favourable to ideals than the air of the House to physical health. Mr. Haldane championed the cause of women on the ground of the steady growth and development of the position taken by women in the work of the country. As for their interference in Parliamentary elections, members were glad to have their support in Tariff Reform, in Liberal and Conservative Associations, in the Victoria League. He believes in nature adjusting inequalities and while consistently advocating the removal of the legal disabilities of women, he never believed they would become warriors, or commanders-in-chief, nor that men would take to nursing children on any large scale. Though not all it should be, the Bill is a step forward. Mr. Haldane is sure that the time will come when political distinctions between men and women will be looked upon with as much amazement as we now regard slavery. Mr. Long dreads the Bill lest it should bring women into the House and finally allow them to serve as Ministers of the Crown, for its supporters admitted that they proposed a small dose simply because they feared the country and the House would not swallow more. In his opinion the Reform would endanger the State and do harm to women themselves. Mr. Lyttelton, premising that his prejudices were against the line his reason urged him to take, declared that reason, justice and almost honour itself were in favour of the measure. Men asked for and accepted the assistance of women at elections. He thought it both unfair and unjust that men should be armed, as far as the suffrage was concerned, up to the hilt, and refuse the single small measure to the weaker and the gentler sex.

Mr. Belloc, against the Bill, characteristically differed in many points from those with whom he voted. Only very, very young unmarried men held, he said, that lack of intelligence excluded women from public action of this kind. Experience of life made men consider the intelligence of women first with reverence, then with stupor and finally with terror. As for the physical force argument against women voting, the only persons he heard use it were dons. It was the uttermost nonsense to suppose that the State ultimately reposed on physical force. As for the idea that there was any tyranny of man over woman "it was for their own good and by the providence of God, a little the other way." Convinced that the mass of popular opinion among men and women was opposed to the principle of the Bill, his vote was against it. Lord Hugh Cecil, Member for Oxford University, and one of the Opposition was strongly in favour of granting women the vote. He saw no reason why they should not have it. When he recorded his vote he was not conscious of performing a function especially delicate, sensational or masculine. He did not leave the place mopping his brow and murmuring, "This is no woman's work." The technical process of giving a vote was denied to women, but they were allowed and encouraged to go through the preliminary mental consideration of approving of a Parliamentary candidate and working for him. The argument of physical force was vain. Should Sandow be made a plural voter, or should he himself be disfranchised, if a woman could knock him down ? He would vote for women to be allowed to do the serene and womanly function of putting a mark on a piece of paper and putting it in the ballot-box. Whatever arguments were used on one side or the other had apparently very little influence on the voting for the members in favour of entrusting the fortunes of the Bill to a Committee of the whole House, as we know, left the question very much where it was when the Debate began, that is outside the pale of immediate political doctrine. By the time the House can consider the question at leisure, many months will have rolled by and who knows what party will be in power and whether any man will be found brave enough to propose a third reading of this most contentious Bill ?

LABOUR FOR THE DOMINIONS.

THE Board of Trade have recently announced a very important development of the system of Labour exchanges, which was introduced under Mr. Winston Churchill Their scope has hitherto been limited to the United Kingdom, but in future they will undertake to supply labour to the Overseas Dominions. A branch department has been created at head-quarters to superintend this section of the work, and has been placed in charge of Colonel A. M. Murray, a retired Artillery officer, who has had a distinguished career and saw active service on the Indian Frontier some years ago. It is understood that Sir George Reid, who has been approached on the subject, is strongly in sympathy with this new extension of the activity of the Labour Exchanges, while the Central Office is in constant communication with the Emigrants' Information Office. The idea, which is now being worked out, is to link up the exchanges with the various offices of the High Commissioners and emigration agents in England of the Dominions, and in this way with the labour departments in the various Oversea States. It is hoped by this means that not alone will suitable outlets be found for the unemployed and an assistance be given in populating the vacant places overseas, but what is regarded as of great importance, that British men shall be found to people the British Empire. The principal need of the Dominions is a supply of farm labourers, and in this respect the exchanges, whose operations are nearly altogether confined to the industrial centres, are considerably handicapped in not being in touch with this class of labour. But this drawback is engaging the attention of the authorities, and as experience is gained of the working of the existing exchanges, it is understood that branches will be opened so as to get more in touch with the rural districts. It is expected that by the end of the year the number of the exchanges now opened will be greatly increased, and the scope of their work largely extended. In addition to artisans, farm labourers, etc., special attention will be devoted to boys engaged in what have been described at home as "blind-alley" occupations, such as messenger boys, etc. Much is hopedfrom this feature of the scheme, as these boys can be trained and fitted for suitable occupations in the Oversea lands.

AEROPLANING IN THE ARMY.

REUTER'S announcement the other day of the attention, which is being given in the British Army to aeroplaning, is if belated still nevertheless welcome. So far Great Britain seems to have pinned her faith to the military value of the airship—although the Army dirigible can hardly yet be called a successful experiment—and the result is that so far as military aeroplaning is concerned we are far behind both France and the United States. France, some time ago, started a military school of aviation, and has some thirty officers, including one general, who are qualified airmen. No such widely organised effort has been made in the United States so far, but it is impossible to ignore the results of the important trials which Mr. Glenn H. Curtiss made the other day with a bomb-dropping aparatus. At the time widely-varying reports were circulated as to the results of this trial, but those which came a little later seemed to agree on the success of the experiment, and there is now no doubt that Mr. Curtiss demonstrated the possibility of dropping bombs with a reasonable amount of certainty to the decks of a hostile fleet from airships. This important work is not mentioned as coming within the scope of the trials which the military are undertaking and we presume that it is regarded as the department of the aerial branch of the Navy. If that it is so, the navy has been remarkably silent about its achievements in this direction, and while secrecy as to defensive works is no doubt to be commended, in this case we think there might be some public assurance regarding a department, precious little of which has been heard since its establishment. We trust we shall not have a similar experience regarding the military experiments which Reuter now foreshadows. Fortunately, from all accounts which reach India, Captain Dickson is a thoroughly capable aviator, and unless he altogether belies his reputation his work should prove of considerable value.

INTERNATIONAL LAW.

TO-DAY the Lord Chief Justice of England will preside in the Guildhall, London, over the annual conference of the International Law Association, a body which was formed 37 years ago, during the dispute between Great Britain and the United States, about the Confederate schooner "Alabama." The undefined and confused condition in which international law then existed was brought prominently to notice and prominent jurists began to consider whether by conference the principles of international law might not be more clearly laid down and codified. The International Law Association thus came into existence and is now meeting again in London. It is seventeen years since the Association has held its annual conference in the Metropolis, as it has so frequently been mainly concerned with questions affecting maritime commerce that there has been a tendency to hold meetings at seaports. To-day the proceedings open with a dinner and the business of the Conference will commence to-morrow when papers on "The Declaration of London" will be read by Sir John McDonnell and Mr. Arthur Cohen. As this is the most vital question of international law as affecting British interests, which is at present before the nation, it is appropriate that it should take first place. It will be followed by descussions of such subjects as : "Workmen's compensation," "Limits of State interference with maritime contracts," "General average," "Jurisdiction in divorce," "Rules of the road on land," and "Stock Exchange law." Those who are to ake a prominent part in the discussions include Professor Gregory (Iowa University), Mr. Justice Walton Sir John Gray Hill, Dr. Sieveking (Hamburg), and Mr. P. B. Mignault (Montreal).

THE next meeting of the United Provinces Legislative Council will be held at Government House at Naini Tal on the 23rd of September.

IT is understood that the District Magistrate, Cawnpore, will arbitrate in the case of Nandan Pershad versus Cawnpur Municipality, the proceedings of which will commence very shortly.

THE principal feature of continually fluctuating trade between the United Provinces and Tibet and Nepal during the last official year shows a decided increase of imports into India, and a fall in the value of exports to the countries named.

THE Tendula irrigation project in the Central Provinces, which was sanctioned sometime ago, will be put in progress at once. It will cost about one crore of rupees, and will be completed in about eight years.

THE Hon Mr. Charles Stewart Wilson, Director-General of the Post Office, leaves Simla on 9th August on tour in Southern India, Ootacamund, Cochin, Bangalore and Poona, and will return to Simla at the beginning of September.

NEWS from Simla shows that Mr. Silver, the Manager, Cawnpore Woollen Mills, is making good progress after the operation he recently underwent. It is now hoped to send him next month on a sea voyage to recuperate before he rejoins work.

MESSRS. G. G. SIM and H. S. Crosthwaite are gazetted Secretary and Under Secretary to the United Provinces Government sub pro tem. Mr. H. G. Haig to be Under Secretary, vice Mr. Crosthwaite.

THE publishing firm of Scribner announces that it has given out to the printers a contract for a million copies of Mr. Roosevelt's book on African game trails, illustrated by photographs taken by Mr. Kermit Roosevelt and others. This, it is claimed, constitutes a world's record.

MRS. Mackinnon, who died at her residence in Sloane Gardens on July 11, was the widow of General Dan Mackinnon, 16th Lancers, one of the veterans of Aliwal. She was the youngest and last surviving daughter of the the Hon. Thomas Robert, fourth Baron Dimsdale, of Camfield Place, Herts.

COL. Ernest Le Pelley, who died at St. Peter-in-the-Wood, Guernsey, on July 9, was an Indian Mutiny veteran, and was mentioned in despatches for his services on that occasion. He was born in 1833, and joined the Army in 1849. During the Mutiny he served in the 5th Fusiliers and took part in the Battle of Budleckesari, the siege and capture of Delhi, many actions, including those of Alighur and Agra before the advance to Oude, the affair of the Alumbagh, and the relief of Lucknow. He received the medal and two clasps with the brevet of major. He retired with the rank of colonel in July 1881.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN.

The Cretan Problem.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, JULY 10.

THE following is the text of the Russo-Japanese Convention, which was signed at St. Petersburg on on July 4 :—The Imperial Government of Russia and Japan being sincerely attached to the principles established by the Convention concluded between them on July 30, 1907, and being desirous of developing the effects of this Convention with a view to the consolidation of peace in the Far East, have agreed to complete the said arrangement in the following manner :—1. With the object of facilitating communications and developing the commerce of the nations, the two High Contracting Parties agree to extend to one another their friendly co-operation, with a view to the improvement of their respective railway lines in Manchuria and the perfecting of the connecting services of the said lines, and to abstain from all competition prejudicial to the realisation of this object. 2. Each of the High Contracting Parties undertakes to maintain and respect the status quo in Manchuria resulting from all the treaties, conventions, and other arrangements concluded up to this date, either between Russia and Japan or between those two Powers and China. Copies of the said arrangements have been exchanged between Russia and Japan. 3. In the event of anything arising of a nature to threaten the status quo mentioned above, the two High Contracting Parties shall enter each time into communication with each other, with a view to coming to an understanding as to the measures they may think it necessary to take for the maintenance of the said status quo.

CRETAN PROBLEM.

The Cretan crisis has subsided, the Assembly having complied with the demands of the Powers, and it is now the turn of the Ottoman Government to make sacrifices to European peace. The following telegram from M. Venizelos was issued on Saturday, the Consuls of the Protecting Powers communicated to me the following ultimatum : "If the Cretan Assembly does not admit Mussulman deputies to resume their places in the Chamber without taking the oath to King George, and if the Moslem functionaries are hindered from discharging their functions or deprived of their salaries on the ground that they have not taken the oath, contingents of the four Powers will be landed at the principal ports of the island, and the Custom houses seized. These measures will be carried out if by noon on Monday, the 11th inst., a decision congruous with these demands has not been adopted." From this telegram two things were clear : First, that Sir Edward Grey's proposal was being executed in its entirety, the Consuls in Canea had assumed the responsibility of turning that proposal into an ultimatum, and fixing a short term of some sixty hours. For this narrowing down of the term of to-morrow at noon was not part of the instructions conveyed to the Consuls by their chiefs, nor were these aware in advance that it had been decided upon. Still, the Consuls were not overstepping their powers when restricting the time to sixty hours. The following telegram from Canea signed by M. Venizelos. "The Cretan Assembly has authorised the Government to declare to the Protecting Powers that the country submits to their injunctions. I immediately notified this decision orally to the Consuls here. A written declaration to the same effect will follow.—(Signed) Venizelos." This welcome telegram, which justifies the confidence placed in the foresight, ability, and patriotism of M. Venizelos, marks the close of the present Cretan crisis, but it would be a dangerous mistake to assume that tranquillity has been permanently restored in the Near East. The boycott of Greek wares, and the racial hatred which that movement reveals and foments, are sources of grave concern to the Powers. Many close observers maintain that Turkey is apparently drifting towards war with Greece, and is indifferent whether Crete or some other interest real or imaginary shall supply pretext. Happily Russia now delivered by M. Iswolsky from Far Eastern cares, is free to devote her entire attention to her interests, and the interests of European peace, in South-Eastern Europe. The Asian-European entente has imported a wholly new factor into world politics, and contributes to simplify certain European problems, which heretofore appeared insoluble, without sacrifices or concessions, which Russia, at any rate was not prepared to offer.

A HAPSBURG TRAGEDY.

One of the many tragedies in which the Austrian Imperial House of Hapsburg is so rich is now to be legally closed, and, at the same time, as far as possible, explained. Saturday Vienna "Official Gazette" publishes an edict calling upon all persons able to throw light upon the disappearance of Johann Orth to communicate with the authorities before next February, as the final proofs of his death are now being collected. This pseudonym was adopted by the Archduke John of Austria, who, after having filled high military posts, quarrelled with his own family and all the leading personages in the Archducal house, and then laid down his title and dignities, left his country, and adopted the profession of a seaman, under the name of Johann Orth. The Archduke, who was an intimate friend of the late Crown Prince Rudolf, was devoted to science and art, and published several works advocating military reform, besides composing a brilliant ballet, "The Assassin." He then took up with ardour the study of spiritualism. The determination and passion with which he followed every subject he studied strongly contrasted with the indifference of his own circle, and led eventually to those conflicts which determined his expatriation. He was accompanied upon his wanderings by his wife, an operetta singer, named Nellie Strubel, whom he had married in London. It is twenty years since they were seen alive, which is the reason for the issue of the edict. Johann Orth purchased in 1890 the vessel Santa Margaretha, and left London in it as a trading captain with a cargo of cement for Buenos Ayres. He sailed from that harbour on July 12, 1890, intending to round Cape Horn, but since that time ship and crew have vanished. An English captain, who was the last man to see the Santa Margaretha, as he was anchored near her, gave later to Lloyd's insurance office full details of the departure of the vessel. He stated his impression that, although Orth had a passion for the sea, his experience was insufficient for sailing so large a ship. Most of the officers left the vessel before her departure, as they refused to accept the responsibility of so difficult a voyage, so that the Archduke started under great disadvantages to meet the violent storms that were awaiting him. Careful observation results in fixing the night of July 20-21, 1890, between midnight and four in the morning, off Cape Tres Puntas, or Cape Descado, lat. 48deg. long, 6odeg. west, that is, 100 sea miles from land, in face of a hurricane, with squalls, as the place where the ship foundered. The repeated stories of the reappearance of Orth may be regarded as fables. He and his much-admired wife were doubtless drowned. An official notice of the death of the Archduke is being sought for through his lawyer by his nephew the Archduke Joseph Ferdinand, and after six months Johann Orth's death will be officially notified. His will lies in the office of the Court Marshal. He leaves property amounting to about 4,000,000 kronen (£160,000). At the time of his disappearance Johann Orth was 38. The members of that branch of the Hapsburgers have made themselves noticeable through their eccentricity. The Archduke John was uncle of the former Crown Princess of Saxony, now Frau Toselli, and of the Archduke Leopold, now Leopold Wolfling.

ROMANTIC GERMAN CASE.

A romantic drama in German aristocratic circles was brought to light by a case heard before the Imperial Supreme Court at Leipzic. In 1859 Count George von Voss, a member of one of the oldest families of the North German nobility, married in Galicia, a woman of humble origin named Debska. Their union proved childless. The Count, however, felt deeply the absence of some being on whom he could lavish paternal care and affection, and in his sorrow he bethought him that one of his sisters-in-law, who was married to a carpenter, had four children for whose bringing-up too plentiful resources were not available. The family was approached on the subject and eventually consented to abandon all claim to one girl, who was taken over by the Count as his own daughter. To put the business on thoroughly stable legal footing from the outset he suborned a reprobate priest to issue him, forged birth certificate to the effect that the girl Helene by name, was, in fact, his child and as such she figures to this day in the courtly calendars. When the child was 13 her aunt and adoptive mother died, and the Count took a second wife from his own worldly station. The new Countess was initiated into the secret of Helene's origin, but was threatened with death in case she should reveal it to another. And so the girl grew up, fully believing herself to be the real daughter of her foster-father, and in due time was married to a Prussian officer, Captain Udo von Grone. If the Count had been as careful in his latter years as he was when he adopted the carpenter's child the true story of the affair would probably never have become known. But it so happened that when he died, six years ago, it was found that he had omitted to make a will. His widow was thus exposed to severe temptation. If she kept the secret of Helene's birth she would have to yield up to her a considerable portion of the Count's estate. On the other hand, if she revealed the facts she would become the sole heir. All circumstances considered, it is not surprising that her material interests predominated. One morning Countess von Grone, as she was called, having in accordance with the German custom, taken over her supposed father's title, received a letter telling her that she had lived her whole life under a delusion, and that, instead of being a lady of noble birth and distinguished lineage, she was only the daughter of an obscure Galician carpenter. It was further made a reproach to her that she had, during his lifetime, received many benefactions from Count von Voss, and she was counselled to abandon all claims to his finheritance, and not to risk the exposure of her humble origin which a law-suit would involve. Countess von Voss had, however, reckoned without her host, Captain von Grone, far from shunning the revelations as to his wife's parentage, took the initiative in litigation, and before the widow knew where she was, she found herself the defendant instead of the claimant in the action. The captain's case was that he had been induced to marry his wife by representations that she was the child and heiress of Count von Voss, and that consequently a fraud had been practised upon him. He therefore urged that Countess von Voss, as her husband's heir, and herself a party to the deception, should be compelled to pay him the sum of £12,000, to which he would naturally have been entitled had his wife really been the Count's daughter. The action has now been finally decided in the captain's favour by the Imperial Court, so that Frau von Grone will, at any rate, suffer no pecuniary loss through the disclosure of the secret of her birth.

REICHSTAG VICE-PRESIDENT.

Prince Earnest of Honhelohe-Langenburg's resignation of the Vice-Presidency of the Reichstag will add a fresh swirl to the eddying surface of German politics. Definitely committed to no particular party, he accepted office as a compromise candidate, with the hope of thus contributing to the reconstruction of the Block, which had just fallen to pieces. Good intentions, however, failed to compensate for lack of Parliamentary experience, and he had soon found himself in violent conflict with the Left of the House. This was the result of several incidents, and most particularly of his failure to call Herr von Oldenburg to order when that arch-Conservative declared that the Emperor should at any moment be able to send a Lieutenant and ten men to shut up the Reichstag. The Prince interpreted this statement at the time not as an insult to the Chamber, but as an "illustration" of the exigencies of discipline. He does not, however, ascribe his desire to retire from his post to his differences with the parties of the Left, but to the attitude of definite hostility taken up by the National Liberals towards the Chancellor, and his force of Conservatives and Clericals, and to "the contents and effects of the Borromeo Encyclical." The former of these considerations, as he states, makes the hope for the restoration of the Block more improbable than ever. As for the Encyclical, we are left to infer that he does not choose to occupy a public position through the votes of the Parliamentary representatives of a Power which issued this fulmination against Protestantism and its princely supporters.

"THE MARSEILLAISE."

When Rouget de Lisle, who had retired to Choisy le Roi, fell, on a lovely June morning in 1836, that he had not many hours to live, he was heard to murmur, "I know that the end is approaching. I have made the world sing, and I am about to die." Hearing that the end was near, people flocked during the day to the house, and when evening came the doctor had the windows of his chamber opened, and then, in the cool air, arose a song, sung in almost hushed tones by the crowd, but with wonderful effect, all the same. It was while "The Marseillaise" thus softly reached his ear that Rouget de Lisle passed away. It was in the night of April 25, 1792, when war against Austria had just been declared, that he, then a captain in the Strasburg garrison, wrote "The Marseillaise," which he entitled "War Song of the Army of the Rhine." It was sung by Mireux, the Deputy for Montpellier, who had accompanied some local volunteers at a farewell given to them at Marseilles by volunteers belonging to that town, and so it was called "The Marseillaise," whereas the name "Strasbourgeoise" would have been more correct. Oddly enough, we are now being told that few Frenchmen have an accurate knowledge of their national hymn, with the exception of the first and the last verse, which by the way, was not written by Rouget de Lisle. Take a score of persons at hazard, put them to the test and the fact will be clearly demonstrated. It is interesting to learn that the last verse which is the best known after the first was composed by the poet Louis Dubois for the civic festival of Oct. 14, 1792.

GERMAN LABOUR TROUBLES.

Labour troubles are threatened in the German shipbuilding industry. The Central Committee of the Shipbuilding Employe's Union has formulated a demand for increased pay and shorter hours, which will shortly be submitted to the Masters' Association as a basis for negotiations. The unions taking part in the movement include the metal and wood workers, shipwrights carpenters, smiths, coppersmiths, painters, engineers, stokers, and factory hands, amounting altogether to over 35,000 men employed in Hamburg, Bremen, Vegesack, Bremerhaven Flensburg, Kiel, Lubeck, Rostock, and Stettin. The men demanded a 10 per cent. increase, and fifty-three hours work per week and recognition of the men's committee.

STATUS OF MONTENEGRO.

THE VETO CONFERENCE.

HOPEFUL VIEWS OF ITS RESULT.

Imperial Chambers Suggested.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]
LONDON, JULY 30.

The papers are practically unanimous in believing that Mr. Asquith's statement in the House of Commons means that there is reasonable hope of a constitutional settlement.

The exceptions are the Daily News, which declares that the prolongation of the Conference is most serious, and that Liberalism has been deprived of its principal fighting asset, while the delay is an unmixed blessing for the Unionists, and the weekly paper the Nation, which is apprehensive of the Government suddenly presenting a settlement not acceptable to the Liberals.

It is understood that the Nationalists will acquiesce in the delay, believing there is a possibility of an Irish settlement.

Lord Milner, speaking at Newton Abbot last night, hoped that the Conference would produce a satisfactory result, otherwise the country would be plunged into a barren squabble for years, preventing Imperial and Social Reforms. A real beneficial constitutional change would be the establishment of assemblies, dealing respectively with Domestic and Imperial questions.

Discussing the question of preference, Lord Milner declared that the Chinese slavery lie paled into insignificance beside the attempt to convince the people that a two shilling duty on grain would mean starvation.

SPAIN AND THE VATICAN.

Ambassador Recalled.

LIBERALISM'S LAST CARD.

LONDON, JULY 30.

Telegrams from San Sebastian state that the Premier, Senor Canalejas, referring to the dispute with the Vatican, said that Liberalism was playing its last card, but would proceed undeterred by threats. All depended upon their enjoying the confidence of the Crown.

LATER.

Reuter telegraphs from Madrid that at a Liberal banquet, the Premier said a gust of revolutionary wind was blowing, and many passions had been loosed. They were prepared to control them. They did not fear the threats of Catholics at Bilbao to hold the prohibited demonstration to-morrow. "We have on our side the authority of a democratic King," he declared.

LONDON, JULY 31.

The Spanish Ambassador to the Vatican has been recalled. The Vatican, in a semi-official communication, declares the recall shows that Premier Canalejas' programme means war, which he will certainly get.

THE CORONATION.

Entertaining Visitors.

LONDON, JULY 30.

A Parliamentary deputation to the Premier yesterday urged him to invite delegations from the Parliaments of the Dominions to the Coronation and to an Imperial Conference.

Mr. Asquith, in reply, said he was unable to approve of Government co-operation. He suggested that the two Houses should entertain the visitors, and it is understood that this course will be followed.

CAMDEN TOWN MURDER.

Prisoners Sleepless and Worried.

ARRESTED ON LANDING.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]
LONDON, JULY 29.

The "Montrose" has reached Belleisle. It is believed that Inspector Drew will make the arrests at Father Point, six hundred miles on.

The wireless messages to Montreal state that Crippen is ignorant that his identity has been discovered.

The Captain of the "Montrose" has sent a wireless telegram to the "Daily Mail," confirming the above and saying that Crippen and his companion are travelling as a merchant and his son. Their demeanour is bright in the presence of fellow-passengers, but they are sleepless and worried, when alone.

The "Montrose" has been delayed by fog.

LONDON, JULY 30.

Inspector Dew has landed at Father Point by special permission of the Immigration authorities, and he will await the arrival of the "Montrose" with the Canadian police. Crippen and his companion will probably be taken to Quebec for extradition, which will possibly not be effected before September.

LATER.

Latest telegram states that Inspector Drew will board the "Montrose" disguised as a Customs Officer. When he identifies the fugitives, the Canadian authorities will quietly arrest them. Most elaborate precautions have been taken to allay Crippen's suspicions. There will not be a police uniform in sight, when the "Montrose" arrives. Inspector Drew, on an interview, said he had been in communication with the "Montrose" and was certain that the suspected individuals were Crippen and his companion. He added, "They will be most surprised, when I confront them."

It is anticipated that in order to avoid legal delays, information will be given enabling the authorities to reject Crippen as an undesirable immigrant, and then hand him over to Inspector Drew for return by the next steamer.

LONDON, JULY 31.

The Captain of the "Montrose," in a wireless message, a column in length, to the "Daily Mail," details the life of the suspects on board. He mentions the books they read, one of which deals with the murder in London with a thousand pounds reward.

The Captain told Crippen's story to make him laugh, and thus ascertained that he wore false teeth. Crippen is fascinated by the wireless telegraphy, remarking it was a wonderful invention. He became restless on the sighting of Belleisle, and was most anxious to land and get to Detroit. He carries a revolver.

LATER.

Crippen and his companion, Miss Leneve, have been arrested.

CATHOLICISM IN ENGLAND.

Remarkable Progress Since 1850.

LONDON, JULY 30.

The Catholic Congress has opened at Leeds. Archbishop Bourne dwelt on the progress of Catholicism in England and Wales, where there were now 1,760 churches, 1,064 schools and 3,687 priests, as compared with 587 churches, 99 schools and 788 priests in 1850. He paid a tribute to the present-day desire and readiness to accept the assistance of the Catholics for public objects.

SITUATION IN PERSIA.

THE ARCHER SHEE CASE.

Bureaucratic Procedure.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]
LONDON, JULY 29.

Legal points regarding Archer Shee's claim for damages have been reserved, for later consideration.

In the House of Commons this afternoon Mr. McKenna in a long statement said he was glad of the vindication of the boy, and also of the bona-fides of the officials.

LONDON, JULY 30.

Papers are generally dissatisfied at the evidence of bureaucratic procedure on the part of the Admiralty in the Archar Shee case. They hope that the system will be amended so as to prevent any recurrence of it.

[The case of Archer-Shee v. the King, which was a petition of right by Mr. Martin Archer-Shee, came before Mr. Justice Ridley and a special jury.

Sir E. Carson, K.C., Mr. Leslie Scott, K.C., and Mr. Hofgaard (instructed by Messrs. Lewis and Lewis) appeared for the suppliant, and the Solicitor-General, Mr. Horace Avory, K.C., and Mr. B. A. Cohen (instructed by the Treasury Solicitor) appeared for the Crown.

When the case was called on, and before the jury were sworn, the Solicitor-General said that there was a point of very great importance upon which he wished to ask the judgment of his lordship. He submitted on behalf of the Crown that this petition of right did not lay against the Crown.

Sir E. Carson contended that this point could not be taken at that stage. They had come there to investigate a certain case, and he wanted to have the facts tried. If there was a demurrer there was an end to the action. It was commenced a year ago, and the Crown had allowed the matter to go into the list for trial by a jury and they had come thereupon the assumption, that they were going to try the case in the ordinary way. There was no precedent for raising a demurrer when the case was in the list for trial.

His Lordship held that the Crown was entitled to take the course which they had taken, and that the petitioner had not the right to have the facts tried before the demurrer was disposed of.

The Solicitor-General, after the jury had been sworn, proceeded to submit that there was no contract between the suppliant and the crown. Of course, the foundation of a petition of right was a contract, and if he was right in saying that there was no contract which could be enforced, it followed that the petition of right was demurrable. He contended that a naval cadet was in the service of the King, and if he was indeed in the service of the King, he was liable to dismissal at pleasure, and no action or petition of right could ever be brought against the King in respect to the dismissal of any officer in the naval or military service. So far did that go that a Secretary of State had no authority to make any contract which would bind the Crown to enter into any other relation between any person entering the service of the Crown, but that of dismissal at pleasure. If he satisfied his lordship that a naval cadet was in the service of the Crown, there was an end to the petition. In the regulations it was stated: "All naval cadets enter the Service under identical conditions and are trained together until they pass to the rank of lieutenant." That, he submitted, showed that there was service. Cadets were appointed to the Racer.

His Lordship.—He has not received a commission?

The Solicitor-General.—He has been appointed a naval cadet.

Sir E. Carson submitted that there was a contract. The matter had been argued by the Crown as if it was a claim for damages for wrongful dismissal. It did not bear a resemblance to anything of that kind. Mr. Martin Archer-Shee entered into a contract with respect to the education of his son under which he undertook obligations. There was no question of dismissal at the King's pleasure, though the Admiralty purported to act under power which had been conferred upon them. In breach of agreement they required the withdrawal of the suppliant's son from Osborne College, and the suppliant was compelled against his will to remove his son. There was nothing to prevent such a contract as was made being made. It had been decided to proceed by petition of right, and when the fiat, "Let right be done," was made by the Crown the action proceeded, counsel contended, like any other action. Various conditions were made in the contract. It was stated that if the conduct of a cadet was unsatisfactory he might be required to withdraw. In the particulars of the breach complained of the petition stated that the charge made in the requisition for withdrawal was based on an allegation of larceny and forgery, whereas, in truth the said charge was totally devoid of foundation. The boy was absolutely honest and had nothing to do with the alleged theft of a postal order. The boy, counsel submitted, was a probationer only, until he was through. It was said that he came under the Naval Discipline Act. Under that Act the commonest boy at sea had the right to be tried by a court-martial. In this case all the Admiralty did was to write and order the withdrawal of the boy so there was no way but this of showing the injustice of the accusation against the boy. To be told that the Naval Discipline Act applied was, after the way in which the Admiralty had acted, a most extraordinary contention.

JUDGE'S DECISION.

His lordship said the Solicitor-General claimed his right, and he was not in a position to refuse him. The first point taken was that the cadet was not in the service of the Crown. He thought that upon the regulations and the other documents in the case, contrary to what one might expect prima facie, the fact was that cadets who were admitted or appointed to the Service in the Naval College at Osborne were in point of fact in the service of his Majesty. It seemed to him that they were so treated all the way through. No fresh document by way of granting a commission appeared to be furnished when they took up actual duty on board ship. When they entered the Service as cadets it was a time of prohibition, but it was also a time when they were in his Majesty's service. If that was the true deduction, it seemed rather difficult to distinguish the case from a former one which related to officers in the service of his Majesty. The courts had decided very strongly that whatever might be the effect of the documents the proper rule was that there was no contract upon which could be based a petition of right and that if there were a concluding contract at all it must be held to have imported into it power of the Crown to dismiss. Therefore, if they allowed that a cadet was in the service of the Crown the same principle must apply. He felt they ought to follow the former decisions. The point was also taken that the previous cases were distinguishable because the parent was the petitioner in this case, whereas in the former cases it was the officers who brought the petitions. The parent in this case, however, merely sued because he represented the interests of the cadet who was an infant. He thought the same doctrine should apply as in the former cases, and in the circumstances he supported the Crown in the argument.

His Lordship granted the Crown the costs of the demurrer.]

KING EDWARD MEMORIALS.

All India Movement.

GENERAL COMMITTEE MEETING.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]
SIMLA, JULY 30.

A meeting of the General Committee of the All-India Memorial Fund for the late King-Emperor was held at Viceregal Lodge at 12 o'clock to-day. The Viceroy was in the chair and the audience included Lady Minto, the Maharaja of Nabha, the Commander-in-Chief, the Bishop of Lahore, Messrs. Robertson, Sinha, Carlyle and Jenkins and Sir Fleetwood Wilson, Members of Council, the Hon'ble Umar Hayat Khan of Tiwana, Sir Harnam Singh and Partab Singh of Kapurthala, the Hon'ble Messrs. A. M. Ker, W. C. Madge and T. B. Wood.

THE VICEROY'S SPEECH.

The Viceroy, addressing the meeting, said:—"Your Excellency and Gentlemen,—I have summoned this meeting in order to place before you certain proposals for a memorial to our late King-Emperor. I have felt that a memorial would be in accordance with the wishes of every community in India and that those wishes would best be met by an All-India Memorial to which everyone in the land, high and low, might have an opportunity of subscribing and of sharing in accordance with his individual means in doing honour to the memory of a great King whose benign rule and sympathetic care for the welfare of his subjects had so well earned their devotion and loyalty throughout the Empire. The form the memorial should assume has been carefully discussed and though I fully recognise the strong arguments which have occasionally been advanced in favour of some great work of public benefaction which might commemorate the great reign of Edward VII to future generations I have found so much diversity of opinion, between local opinion and that of various benevolent interests that it seemed to me impossible to decide upon a public memorial which would on such lines satisfy the diversity of views I know to exist. It seems to be much better, therefore, that the inauguration of memorials which aimed at some great public work such as institution of hospitals or museums should be undertaken locally under conditions where local interests and local wants were understood and with that idea I have encouraged the inauguration of provincial memorials inaugurated by local authorities and communities. I hope they will be kept entirely distinct from the All-India Memorial, the object of which, as I have said, is that subscriptions may be within the reach of every individual in India and that the amount of subscriptions should be limited so as to distribute them as far as possible throughout the whole community. With this view individual subscription will be limited to Rs. 5,000 and the smallest will be acceptable, whilst the sum total of contributions will be limited to five lakhs.

"I may as well say now that some local authorities have proposed to me that a certain percentage of their receipts to local memorials should be given to the All-India Memorial, but this is in my opinion contrary to the spirit in which I hope subscriptions for the All-India Memorial will be raised. They should, I feel, be entirely distinct from all local efforts.

"Now as to the memorial itself I have consulted the King-Emperor and His Majesty has graciously agreed that the object we have in view would be best met by an equestrian statue of King Edward VII at Delhi, a city that is not only central, but will be for ever associated with many glorious incidents in the history of India. The actual site will have to be determined by the Executive Committee I propose to name to you to-day, but I may say that the position for the statue which would seem to me the best is the open space between the Jumma Musjid and the Fort. The probable price of a marble statue would, I believe, be about 4,000 guineas and with a total subscription of five lakhs there would be available a very considerable margin for the laying out of gardens and their up-keep as part of the surroundings of the memorial. The selection of the sculptor and the laying out of such grounds will require to be dealt with by the Executive Committee. I have been asked as to the duties of vice-patrons and members of the General Committee, These will, I hope, be to make known the views I have endeavoured to express today and to encourage the transmission of subscriptions. I am glad to say that subscriptions have already been promised from the Nizam of Hyderabad and the Maharaja of Kashmir. Mysore and Jodhpur amounting to Rs. 20,000 and that Mr. Ker has in this meeting generously contributed Rs. 1,000.

"As to the Executive Committee I would propose the following names:—The Hon'ble Mr. Carlyle, Mr. Robertson, Mr. Justice Mookerji, the Hon'ble Mr. C. W. N. Graham, the Commissioner of Delhi, the Foreign Secretary, the Public Works Secretary, the Private Secretary to the Viceroy, the Hon'ble Mr. Ker, Treasurer, Captain Mackenzie, Secretary. Mr. Ker has kindly consented to act as Treasurer and to receive any subscriptions which should be paid through the Alliance Bank of Simla or the Bank of Bengal."

The following Executive Committee was proposed. The Viceroy, Chairman; Messrs. Carlyle and Robertson and the Members of Council, Mr. Justice Mukherjee, Mr. C.W.M. Graham (Calcutta), the Foreign and Public Works Secretaries to the Government of India, the Commissioner of Delhi Division, the Hon. Mr. Ker, Hon. Treasurer, and Captain J. Mackenzie, Honorary Secretary, with the Alliance Bank of Simla as Bankers. It was suggested that a marble equestrian statue at Delhi between the Fort and Jumma Musjid would be a fitting memorial, This would cost 3,000 guineas and the balance of the five lakhs could be devoted to gardens and upkeep.

Lord Minto announced donations of Rs. 5,000 each from the Nizam of Hyderabad, the Maharaja of Mysore, Kashmir and Jodhpure and Rs. 1,000 from the Hon'ble Mr. Ker. The meeting then terminated.

The Punjab Memorial.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]
SIMLA, JULY 31.

A most influential and largely attended meeting consisting of representatives from the Native States of the Punjab and all districts and was held to-day in the Town Hall, Lahore, with the object of raising subscriptions for the provincial King Edward Memorial Fund. Sir Louis Dane the Lieutenant Governor, presided. In the course of a long speech explaining the form the memorial will take His Honour said: "Happily the scheme will indirectly serve other great and kindred objects in which King Edward took so much interest, improvement of stock and prevention and relief of suffering in animals. It is proposed to place a college on a fresh and more commodious site in Lahore and then we can raise its status and teaching and train regular veterinary surgeons instead of veterinary assistants and so make India as a whole more self supporting and able to meet its own wants. The idea is cordially approved by the Government of India and the Punjab will thereby retain the honour of being the first and foremost in the field of medical relief for animals. The memorial, above all things, will be a centre from which will radiate effective pity and compassion on all suffering creatures and the spirit of the great King will, I feel sure, ever animate who will have the honour of being trained these in its colleges and in the opinion of my advisers and myself, shall best honour, serve and vivify the memory of one whose whole life was an example of the heavenly teaching, "Peace on earth and good-will towards men."

The following resolution was then moved, seconded and supported by representatives of Native States, i. e. Patiala, Nabha, Bhawalpur, Jhind, Faridkot and the rest. "That this meeting approves of the proposal that as a Punjab memorial to His late Majesty King Edward VII whose sympathy with his people in their joys and sorrows will ever be gratefully remembered by them. A new and enlarged Medical College shall be built and the attached hospitals, the Mayo, the Albert Victor and the Lady Aitchinson, shall be expanded and improved so as to form a great central institution for medical relief and instruction."

The Maharajh of Patiala donated two lakhs of rupees, the Nawab of Bahawalpur, Rs. 1,50,000 the Maharaja of Jhind one lakh the Maharaja of Nabha one lakh, Raja of Faridkot Rs. 50,000. Other miscellaneous donations, amounting to about one lakh were announced besides those collected at Delhi and Amritsar the latter alone coming up to three lakhs. Lyallpore has promised to collect one lakh. Rawalpindi Rs. 50,000. The Punjab bar will open a separate fund. The entire scheme will cost 13 lakhs.

THE TIBETAN TROUBLE.

British Posts Inadequately Protected.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]
ALLAHABAD, JULY 30.

Measures that are being taken by the Government in Tibet are merely precautionary. There is no intention at present of making any descent into Tibet. The Government cannot any longer ignore the fact that there are in the Tibetan situation as it has latterly developed elements of danger to the isolated British posts at Yatang and Gyantse. It is obvious for sometime past that the Chinese were not finding the task of annexation and pacification as easy as they hadanticipated. So far the British posts have not been interfered with in any way either by the Tibetans or the Chinese, but the possibility for such a contingency arising must be taken into account. At Gyantse at present there are two British Officers, Captain Neir and Lieut Creagh with an escort of 50 sepoys of the 120th Rajputana Infantry; at Yatung, Mr. A. Macdonald, the Trade Agent, has an escort of twenty-five sepoys of the same regiment. These escorts are sufficient in ordinary circumstances, but the authorities have to be prepared for emergencies.

KING EDWARD MEMORIAL.

Bombay Presidency Fund.

We publish to-day the first subscription list of the Bombay Presidency King Edward Memorial. It shows that a sum of nearly ninety thousand rupees has already been subscribed to the fund. Our readers will remember that at the meeting held at the Town Hall under the presidentship of His Excellency the Governor in June, it was decided to raise a memorial for the Presidency as a whole. At the first meeting of the General Committee, it was unanimously agreed that the most appropriate memorial to His Late Majesty would be a hospital in the northern part of the Island of Bombay, with, if possible, a sanotarium for consumptives in some suitable place, determined by expert advice, and a convalescent home. The main reason determining this decision were twofold. They were, first, that the memorial should benefit as far as possible all parts of the Presidency. There is not a district in this Province that does not send its quota to the labour force in the Presidency Town and anything which benefits, the general army of workers' benefits, in a greater or less degree every district. A hospital in the neighbourhood of Parel is a great and growing necessity. Then phthisis is rampant in many parts of the Province. The striking advance of medical science has shown that it is curable in an enormous number of cases, if properly treated. All over the world active measures are now being taken to dealt with this destructive disease; India alone lags behind. Of course energy must be concentrated; but wherever it may be situated the sanitorium will be open to all. The value of a convalescent home as a corollary to hospital treatment needs no demonstration. The second determining factor in the choice of a memorial was that it should be associated directly with one of His Late Majesty's principal activities. There was no work dearer to the heart of King Edward than the alleviation of human suffering. Therefore it is earnestly hoped that if local memorials are anywhere to be raised, the claims of the Presidency Memorial will not be forgotten, as many lakhs of rupees will be required if the objects set before the Presidency are worthily to be achieved. In several districts, local committees have already been formed, and the inhabitants of Penit Waluka, in the Nasik District, have sent a substantial contribution.

SPORTING NEWS.

RACING IN POONA.

First Extra Meeting.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

POONA, SATURDAY, JULY 30.

The Poona Racing Season opened this afternoon with a card of seven events, but the attendence was only a moderate one, although Bombay as usual sent a strong contingent of sportsmen through the Race Specials. The issues, except in two races, were generally in favour of the public, the rush on the favourites being such that they were backed at odds on. The stables of Mr. Newton and Mr. R. E. S. contributed two winners each, while young Brown, just back from Australia, steered three of them home. Of the two upsets, the one in the horse race provided a great sensation. Of the seven starters "Solution" was considered a moral certainty and as the finish it was difficult to get half money on her, but in the race she was badly beaten by Mr. G. K's. "Not Yet." An objection was laid by the former's owner against the winner for interference at the start. Conjectures as to the results of the protest were many, but it was however over-ruled by the Stewards after an exhaustive enquiry.

Improvements about the course, enclosures and stands were noticeable everywhere and everything looked spick and span. A Totalizator has been provided for the second enclosure and in both stands the Tote was well patronised.

The weather here just now is cool and pleasant, but the traditions of the opening day of the racing season were maintained and it drizzling throughout the races with a strong shower during the third race. The going was very heavy and the time records were poor.

Harwood League.

R. G. A. vs. COMMERCIAL GYMKHANA.

There was a good number of spectators on the Cooperage on Saturday evening to witness the League, game between the above teams. The Artillery included McDonald at outside right, who has come down from Roorkee with a good reputation, and during the game put in some clever play.

From the start, the Artillery pressed, their forwards ably led by Wiggett, who was playing in his usually clever style, at once finding work for Popham and only a few minutes had elapsed when Fleming opened the scoring with a shot which gave Popham no chance. The Gunners continued to press and further goals were scored prior to the interval by Lt. Brooke and O'Keefe, the Artillery leading at half time by three goals to nothing.

In the second half the Artillery continued to do all the pressing and further augmented their scores through Lt. Brooke who scored shrice, and Watts, who was successful in scoring from a penalty kick, awarded against Harwood who fouled Lt. Brooke in the dreaded area.

Result :—

R. G. A.	7
Commercial Gymkhana	0

Teams :—

R. G. A.—Goal : Gair ; backs : Franklin and Jones ; halves : Wiggett, Watts and Southcott; forwards : Hewes, Fleming, Lt. Brooke, O'Keefe and Mcdonald.

Commercial Gymkhana.—Goal : Popham; backs : Harwood and Chapman; halves : Barnard, Johnson and Wilkie; forwards : Brown, Calvet, Davis, Hegworth and Tweedle.

Y. M. C. A. vs BOMBAY GYMKHANA.

There was only a sprinkling of spectators on the Oval on Saturday evening to witness the above match. The Y. M. C. A. rushed matters immediately from the kick-off, and only a minute had elapsed when Pack opened the scoring. A couple of minutes later the same player headed through from a corner, and nearing half time, Maurice had no difficulty in notching the third, Lewin having left his goal. Nothing further was scored to take the interval when the Gymkhana, who were greatly handicapped by having only ten men, were three goals to the bad.

On resuming there was a great improvement manifested in the play of the Gymkhana, and after keeping the Association on the defensive for some considerable time, Evans beat Wadley with a beauty. A few minutes after Elliot scored goal number two for the Gymkhana. There is no doubt about it, that if the Gymkhana had had their clever player Coopper assisting them at this stage, they might have won the game. The Y. M. C. A. now had a look in, and Pack tricking a couple of opponents, placed the ball in the corner of the net.

Result :—

Y. M. C. A.	4
Bombay Gymkhana.....	2

Teams :—

Y. M. C. A.—Goal : Wadley, backs : Foskett and Booker; halves : Templeton, Wards, A. N. Other; forwards: Barker, Cornfield, Maurice, Pack and Hildreth.

The depression off Orissa is still feeble and the Bay monsoon has given little rain, west of Calcutta. The activity of the Bombay current has also diminished in the interior of the Peninsula. The rainfall has been nearly general in Lower Burma, the Submontane, parts of the United Provinces, and West Coast of the Peninsula, and fairly general in Upper Burma, Eastern Bengal and Assam, Orissa, Rajputana, Central India, the West Central Provinces, the Bombay Deccan, Mysore and the North Madras Coast, while a few falls have occurred in the East Punjab, Gujarat, Hyderabad, South-East Madras and the Deccan.

The principal amounts are:—Slipper Island and Moulmein, one and a half inches; Mergui, two; Tavoy, four ; Jalpaiguri five; Darjeeling one and a half ; Bhuj, Bombay and Karwar, two; Ratnagiri, six; Goa and Mormugao, three; Poona and Mercara, one and a half.

Forecast.—No important change.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

POONA, JULY 30.

It rained again in Poona last night fairly heavily, which with the previous night's shower has to a great extent relieved the anxiety regarding the crops. There has also been a welcome return to the pleasant temperature of the monsoon months, which temporarily ceased during the three weeks' drought. The sky continues to be overcast.

SIMLA, JULY 31.

To-day's weather report shows that the activity of Bombay current is already diminishing in the interior of the Peninsula, and the Bay monsoon is now giving but little rain in the west of Calcutta.

Continuous showers of rains were experienced in Bombay since Saturday afternoon and the forecast of the Metereological reporter was borne out by rains which descended on Saturday and Sunday. The anxiety caused by the long break is being removed as news is received of good rain in other parts of the Presidency also.

On Saturday, the Port Officer, Bombay, received the following telegram from the Meteorological Department, Simla.

Storm signal :—Area of squally weather disappeared.

"HANDS OFF" IN MANCHURIA.

The publication of the text of the Manchurian Convention between Russia and Japan does not add materially to our knowledge but it serves to emphasize the remarkable character of that agreement. By it the two Powers who half a dozen years ago were at death-grips in that fertile and desirable country, promise mutual aid in making the most of the concessions of the Treaty of Portsmouth. The United States projects first of neutralising all the Manchurian railways in the interests of international commerce, and then of building a line from the border of China proper to the Amur, have by this Convention been relegated to the Greek Kalends. Such a line, Russia complains, would not only steal the trade of her existing line to Harbin, but, running as it would to the west of it, would enormously lessen its strategic value. Once more it is shown that Chinese authority and control over Manchuria are unreal and without substance. As for the undertaking that in seventy-five years' time all the Russian railways in the province shall revert to China.

A COMMA UNDER DISCUSSION.

It is difficult to feel Mr. Lloyd George's sympathy with Lord Hugh Cecil in the complaint he makes of the printers of the Prayer Book. They seem to think it wrong that since 1894 the sentence should have been made run—"Thy will be done in earth, as it is in Heaven." instead of "Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven." We confess that to use the printers seem entirely in the right. This version is, of course, taken from the Gospel of St. Matthew. If a reference is made to the slightly different version in St. Luke, it will be found that an increased emphasis is laid on the "as" that is to say, on the comparison between earth and Heaven "Thy will be done, as in Heaven, so in earth," it reads. To bring out this sense it is evident that the comma must come after "done," where our modern printers place it. There is the yet stronger argument in the same direction that many reliable authorities regard the phrase "in earth as it is in Heaven" applies not only to the doing of the will, but to the two preceding petitions also"—"Hallowed be Thy name, Thy Kingdom come"—in which case it is absolutely essential that the comma should come where it does now.

BROTHERS AND GAMES.

It is sufficiently interesting to see a slow bowler follow exactly in the steps of his father, we may even marvel at fit, but we shall marvel less, if we attend to what modern physicists tell us of heredity. They say that the father is to some extent the elder brother of his son, that some portion of a faculty handed down perhaps from a grandfather lies latent in the son, to be handed on in its full vigour to the grandson. And that elder and younger brothers frequently share the same gift requires no proof. We have only to look in cricket itself at the Lyttelton, Fords, Thorntons, Palairets, Hearnes, and many others. In golf we have the Blackwells, Martin Smiths, and a score of other examples; in football the Birketts. Every-where the same phenomenon meets the eye.

FOOTBALL AND CHESS AT STRIFE.

Mr. Blackburne, the great chess player, complains that the seed he sowed among the colliers of the Tyneside and Lancashire fell on rocky or carboniferous ground. He sowed a love of chess amongst them, but the thorns of football grew up and choked it. We may feel inclined to doubt his reasoning, for he did the same service to the colliers of South Wales, who are also devoted to football, and yet the seed sown there has brought forth a hundred fold. They are very keen on chess there have a number of clubs, and can boast of some very good players. It is possible, of course, that the Welshmen spend less mental power before and after a football match in speculating on the result or criticising it. Their game is Rugby, pure and undefiled on the whole, a game played for itself alone. Here they have the advantage over the North countrymen, who make too much of a business of their football. It is not football, then, but the concomitants thereof that have killed chess on the banks of the Tyne. There is nothing incongruous between proficiency in chess and skill at more muscular exercises. Mr. Lasker, who won the amateur golf championship two years ago, is a brilliant chess player.

ROMANCE.

For thousands that have heard of Rajah Brooke there must be few to whom the name of Ross suggests adventure. Such is the luck of reputation. George Clunies Ross, recently deceased at Ventner, was "King of the Cocos Islands," a little group situated in the South Indian Ocean, about 700 miles south-west of Sumatra. In 1825 a certain Scot named Ross, grandfather of the subject of this notice, reached these unoccupied islands and persuaded some of his fellow-countrymen to colonise them. Since then the Ross family has controlled the fortunes of the seven hundred Malayas and Bantamese existing beneath its enlightened despotism. The islands, it is said, are very well administered, and in 1836 Darwin visited them, pronouncing shortly afterwards his theory of the formation of coral-reefs by subsidence. Amid natives and domestic animals, almost the only kind of animal life the islands support, three generations of this remarkable family have now spent their lives. Cocoanuts abound, and the large crab, which, like the civilised humorist, freeds in that fruit. Rats are also plentiful.

THE SAVIOUR OF THE CONGO.

The Congo may not seem to have emerged entirely from the black shades of night which hung over it so long: in fact, Mr. E. D. Morel, in the pamphlet he published last November on "The Future of the Congo," subjects the promised reforms to a searching analysis, and shows that they are not wholly satisfactory. The abandonment of the old claim to the ownership of the rubber is only to take place gradually, and not at all in the Abir and Anversoise Concessions, more notorious than any other parts for outrages on natives; nor is compulsory labour to die a sudden death. Still, much is in process of being done; the compulsory food taxes, for one thing, are to be abolished and it is safe to say that little or even nothing would have been done had it not been for Mr. Morel's unwearying campaign against these shocking abuses. In this work he has sacrificed his private interests, and everyone who can at all pierce to himself the load of wretchedness lifted by Mr. Morel's efforts from the backs of thousands of wretched Congolese will welcome Lord Cromer's suggestion that some practical testimonial should be raised to express the nation's gratitude. If villages are no longer pillaged and burnt, if the population ceases to die off from misery, overwork, lack of food, and disease, if the abomination committed by the companies' agents are effectually stopped, it is Mr. Morel who is primarily responsible.

A FIGHT FOR BEAUTY.

The warriors who are defending Wimbledon Common have cause to be satisfied with their achievement so far. One piece of land after another has been secured, till the whole of the first portion of threatened ground is safe. One need not say that one do not refer to any physical warfare on the part of gallant territorials or others, but to the campaign of persuasion and money raising by which it is hoped to rescue from the hands of the speculative builder the lands lying between the Common and Richmond Park. Once these lands are gone, no inconsiderable part of the charm of the locality will have gone with them. For it is not to be supposed that any purchaser bent on his own profit would keep them as farms or private recreation-ground. If that were likely, the prospect would not be so bad. But it is the builder with his mania for erecting small, ugly, gimcrack villas, who would come between the public and the fair view. All the ground must be secured by purchase if the Common is to retain its present character. The Combe and Malden District Council have helped nobly in the fight by their resolve to spend £3,500 on a certain threatened strip, and private local effort has done much. Much, however, remains to be done before the danger is altogether put aside. Three sections of land have still to be purchased, amounting to over 140 acres and costing £40,000. It is a large sum in itself, but a small price for the benefit of securing to London the unimpaired possession of one of its fairest playgrounds. Everybody who can afford it, and who has a proper sense of the value of open spaces on the borders of a great city, should come to the help of the fighters in the profitable fight they are waging.

SCIENTIFIC NOTES.

THE FIRST VIEW OF NEPTUNE.

Although it was an Englishman John Couch Adams and a Frenchman, Le Verrier who first inferred the existence of a planet outside the orbit of Uranus, it was a German astronomer, who first saw the new member of the solar system. This curious incident in astronomical history is recalled by the death just announced of the distinguished veteran astronomer Prof. Johann Gottfried Galle of Berlin. Adams sent in his remarkable calculations to the Astronomer Royal in October 1845 and in the following year Le Verrier sent in a similar work to the French Academy. In both the existence of a new planet outside Uranus was inferred from certain irregularities in the orbit of the latter. Its mass and probable position were given. The search suggested by Adams work was for some reason delayed by the Astronomer Royal, but Le Verrier wrote to his friend Dr. Galle of Berlin directing him exactly where to look for the new planet. Searching the place indicated, Galle found a star of the eight magnitude not in the Berlin Star Map on September 23. Further observation showed that it moved among the fixed stars. It was in fact the new planet.

A FAMOUS ASTRONOMER.

Thus the honour of first seeing the new planet predicted by the brilliant and independent researches of Adams and Le Verrier fell to the lot of a German astronomer. Subsequent comparison of observations showed that Neptune had actually been seen in this country on August 4, though without recognition. A contemporary of the English and French astronomers and a sharer of their honours Professor Galle outlived both, and had reached the ripe old age of 98. His life was devoted to the pursuit of astronomy at which he worked to within a few days of his death. Professor Galle was the discoverer of the inner dusky or semi-transparent ring of Saturn, which he observed in 1838. In 1872, again he suggested a new method of observing the solar parallax which according to Sir David Gill appears to be the foundation of the method of the future." This consists in measuring the differences in declination, by means of an equatorial telescope, between certain selected stars and one of the minor planets.

IS THERE A PLANET BEYOND NEPTUNE?

It was the occurrence of certain irregularities in the orbit of Uranus that led to the prediction of the new planet. The Newtonian law of gravitation necessitated the existence of an attracting body outside. "We see it," wrote Herschel of the then undiscovered Neptune, "as Columbus saw America from the shores of Spain. Its movements have been felt along the farreaching line of our analysis with a certainty hardly inferior to ocular demonstration." And certain irregularities in the orbit of Neptune suggest in a similar way a trans-Neptunian member of the solar company. A new trembling has occurred along the line of astronomical analysis, and a new planet is being looked for outside the orbit of Neptune. Being greatly more remote than Neptune, it will probably reveal itself by the registration of its light on the photographic plate rather than by direct vision in the telescope.

IONS UNDER THE MICROSCOPE.

Ions loom large in modern theoretical chemistry. Literally, an ion is a goer, a thing that travels. The use of the term is illustrated by the electrolysis of water, its separation into hydrogen and oxygen by means of an electric current passing through it. The atoms molecules, or other particles of the former gas go to one of the platinum electrodes, while those of the latter travel to the other. In each case the particles travel to their respective poles in virtue of a charge of electricity, positive or negative, which they carry. The particle of matter, whether group of molecules, single molecule or atom, thus rendered active by an electric charge is termed an ion. Thus, for example, the particles of air are ionised by the emanations of radium. Some recent expriments by Professor Kossgonoff, of the University of Kieff, referred to in the "Scientific American" seem to indicate that under certain conditions ions may be rendered visible.

SEEN BY ULTRA-MICROSCOPY.

The method used by Professor Kossgonoff is that known as ultra-microscopy, a method by which particles which cannot be seen otherwise with the highest powers, are rendered visible. The principle of ultra-microscopy may be best understood by reference to what happens when beam of sunlight is admitted into a darkened room. In this case the dust particles, unseen under ordinary conditions, are rendered clearly visible. So, if an object under the microscope in darkened surroundings is illuminated by a powerful beam of light, things not otherwise visible are seen.

VISION OF MOVING IONS.

Professor Kossogonoff has subjected the process of electrolysis to the scrutiny of the ultra-microscope and believes that he has seen the moving ions, When a view was taken of a copper solution in which a current was passing between copper electrodes, certain bright points were seen moving in the direction of the current. When the current was reversed the direction of moving points was also reversed. When the electric current had flowed for some time the number of bright points increased. Similar particles seemed to accumulate at one of the electrodes in the form of arborescent crystals. When the liquid was placed in a magnetic field whose lines of force were perpendicular to the current of electricity, then the path of the moving particles was altered according to Ampere's law. The velocity of the particles again, has determined by Professor Cossogonoff, is the same as that of ions, according to the measurement of Kohlrausch. It would thus appear that moving ions have actually been seen.

MARTYR TO SCIENCE.

Mr. H. W. Cox, who recently, died a victim to the science of "X" rays, of which he was a pioneer, took up "X" ray investigation some fourteen or fifteen years ago. During the course of his research, about twelve years ago, he placed by accident the tube of the apparatus near his face, with the result that through the rays he contracted "X" ray dermatitis. Although afflicted with this dread disease, Mr. Cox threw himself into the work of perfecting the apparatus. He took out some eighty patents, one of them being a valuable invention which locates not only the position of a bullet but also its depth. This apparatus was used with success during the South African War.

KING EDWARD'S INTEREST.

Mr. Cox's efforts in this field of science were recognised by the medical fraternity, as King Edward himself took a deep interest in his work. King Edward, then Prince of Wales, had a curious experience on the first occasion that he inspected Mr. Cox's apparatus. Mr. Cox was giving a demonstration before members of the royal party, including the then Princess of Wales and Princess Maud. A gentleman came unannounced in the dark room. "Would you mind holding my foot?" said Mr. Cox to this gentleman, "so that I can show the Princess the nails in my boot?" The gentleman respondered alertly, and held the foot whilst the demonstrator displayed the wonderful penetrating power of the mysterious rays. A short time afterwards Mr. Cox learned that his willing assistant was the future King Edward VII. Some years ago the disease from which he was suffering had made such strides that Mr. Cox found himself obliged to give up the active management of his business. This step involved him in considerable financial loss. His friends made an application for a pension from the Civil List, but unfortunately the granting of such a well earned reward was found to be impossible, and he was granted a lump sum of £200 by the Treasury. Later, through the efforts of Sir William Treloar, a sum of £2,600 was raised and invested on behalf of Mr. Cox and his family. Some of the best known medical men of the day attended on him, and he underwent no fewer than three serious operations, but the progress of the disease could not be stayed, and within a short time Mr. Cox lost three fingers of his left hand, which had become withered, and one of his right hand. Ultimately it was found necessary to amputate the right arm. An operation on his throat was abortive, and a second was contemplated, but owing to his serious condition this could not be attempted, and Mr. Cox had perforce to await patiently the only release that was open to him—the release of death.

WE ARE THE PIONEERS OF WRIST WEAR. A new model has to pass through the severest tests before we place it before the public; and should it fail to satisfy in the minutest particular, what we know to be the essentials of a Wrist Watch, it is at once discarded.

These "Ideal" Wrist Watches are constructed to withstand hard-wear, such as we know a wrist watch must of necessity be subjected to. They are built for the Indian climate and to these combined features we attribute their great popularity. The lever movement is fully jewelled, strong keyless attachment, compensated balance, carefully adjusted hair spring, white enamel dial, bold numerals, sunk seconds circle. The time-keeping accuracy and durability of these watches carry our usual guarantee. The soft leather wristlet obviates contact of metal with the skin, vitiates the possibilities of irritation or poisoning and reduces even the remote chance of moisture permeating case.

Both of the illustrations are photographic reproductions, and No. 2 shows the chamois lined strap crossing the back of watch.

KNIGHT OF THE ORDER OF LEOPOLD OF BELGIUM
KNIGHT OF THE LEGION OF HONOUR
LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL

THE PUREST. THE MOST PALATABLE. THE MOST DIGESTIBLE. THE MOST EFFICACIOUS.

Incontestably proved by Forty Years' Medical Experience to be The only Cod Liver Oil which produces the full curative effects in CONSUMPTION AND DISEASES OF THE CHEST, THROAT AFFECTIONS, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, WASTING DISEASES OF CHILDREN, RICKETS, AND ALL SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

SIR G. DUNCAN GIBB, Bart., M.D.,
Physician to the Westminster Hospital.

"The value of DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL as a therapeutic agent in a number of diseases, chiefly of an exhaustive character, has been admitted by the world of medicine; but, in addition, I have found it a remedy of great power in the treatment of many Affections of the Throat and Larynx, especially in Consumption of the latter, where it will sustain life when everything else fails."

DR. SINCLAIR COGHILL,
Physician to the Royal National Hospital for Consumption, Ventnor.

"I have convinced myself that in Tubercular and the various forms of Strumous Disease, DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL possesses greater therapeutic efficacy than any other Cod Liver Oil with which I am acquainted. It was especially noted in a large number of cases in which the patients protested they had never been able to retain or digest other Cod Liver Oil, that DR. DE JONGH'S OIL was not only tolerated, but taken readily, and with marked benefit."

JOSEPH J. POPE Esq., M.R.C.S.,
Late Staff Surgeon, Army, Professor of Hygiene, Birkbeck Institution, London.

"I found during my Indian experience that the worth and character of DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL remained unchanged by tropical heat or foreign climate, and it was, from its uniformity of character, particularly adapted for long-continued administration. The value of 'hydro-carbons' in all debilitated states of the system is now becoming thoroughly recognised; and it is, without doubt, from the animal oils, and fats, rather than from their vegetable substitutes, that we may hope to derive the surest benefit. The Oil of DR. DE JONGH places in everyone's reach a reliable and valuable remedy, one that cannot be too widely recognised."

DR. R. C. CROFT,
Author of "Handbook for the Nursery."

"DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is almost a specific in many of the Diseases peculiar to Infancy and Childhood, and I have seen marked benefit produced by its use. Patients prefer it to the Pale Oils, and are able to retain it more comfortably."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is Supplied ONLY in IMPERIAL Half-Pints, Pints and Quarts, sealed with Betts' Patent Capsule impressed on the top with DR. DE JONGH'S Stamp, and on the side with his Signature, and the Signature of ANSAR, HARFORD & Co.; and bearing under the wrapper a Label with the same Stamp and Signatures.

WITHOUT THESE MARKS NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE.

WORLD-FAMED
GUTTÆ VITÆ
Or, LIFE DROPS.

The Great European Remedy for Nervous and Functional Exhaustion.

This extraordinary rejuvenating essence strengthens the vitality of the whole system, gives energy to the muscles, and speedily restores the impaired powers of life, imparting strength and manly vigour to the most debilitated and worn out constitution. Equally adapted for the studious and sedentary; the aged and infirm; the nervous and debilitated; as also for delicate females and weakly children. All sufferers from loss of appetite, nervous headache, lassitude, and despondency—too often accompanied with suicidal thoughts—should make immediate and fair unprejudiced trial of this wonderful medicine, which is daily effecting the most remarkable cures in patients who had been given up by the Faculty as incurable, and left to drag out the remainder of their existence a misery to themselves, and a continual anxiety to their friends. In all cases of nervous and functional debility, epilepsy, impurity and poorness of the blood, aversion to and incapacity for society, study, or business, giddiness, disturbed sleep, harassing dreams, loss of memory, and other symptoms, the result of self-acquired ailments that embitter and shorten life, it is truly unrivalled. To married persons especially, this preparation will prove invaluable, giving strength and vigour in place of hasitude and incompetency. Price 11s. or four times that quantity, 33s. per Bottle.
